MUH 3530 (1710): POPULAR AND TRADITIONAL MUSIC OF AFRICA

Instructor: Larry Crook
Phone/Email: 273-3171/lcrook@ufl.edu
Office: University Auditorium 301;
Office Hours: Monday 5th and by appointment

GENERAL DESCRIPTION
This course examines selected topics in African music. Class periods include lectures, discussions, music listening, video viewing, live presentations, and interactive participatory sessions involving music making among students. The course begins by introducing several broad issues including the representation of African music, the role of music in African social life, and the ways in which African musical traditions have impacted and been impacted by colonialism and globalization. The course then focuses on selected musical traditions linked (geographically and historically) to various areas of Africa. Several themes run through the course: interconnection of traditional and popular forms of music, colonial and post-colonial contexts of music making, the impact of mass media and global circulation of African music, and music's role in shaping African identities. Over the semester we will spend time reading about, discussing, and listening to a wide variety of musical sounds created by African. Pre-requirements: MUH 2501 or permission by the instructor.

This course satisfies Humanities (H) and International (N) general education requirements. As such, the course will explore how African music expresses and embodies the values and beliefs of different people and communities in Africa and in African diasporas in Europe and the Americas (especially in relation to the diversity of cultural norms and values in the United States). It will also investigate how academic scholars, journalists, politicians, and the music industry represent African music. Many of the readings for the class will highlight divergent interpretations of African music among American and African scholars from diverse socio-cultural perspectives. We will also investigate the complex set of international relations and global processes that have linked such traditions as Gospel and Jubilee singing in 19th-Century America with Isicathamiya Choral Music of South Africa.

OBJECTIVES
This course will
• Increase students' knowledge and enjoyment of African music;
• Explore how African musics embody the values, beliefs, and cultural differences of a variety people, periods, and places in Africa and its diaspora;
• Introduce students to a diverse set of African musical traditions and instruments;
• Improve students’ ability to recognize, discuss, and describe African musical styles, structures, using the terms, methods, and theoretical concepts of ethnomusicology;
• Enhance students’ knowledge of African musical history in relation to major historical events and geopolitical global influences.
STUDENT LEARNING OUTCOMES
Students will
- Gain an intellectual basis for understanding African music in diverse cultural contexts;
- Learn methods, theoretical concepts, and terms of the discipline of ethnomusicology and how the biases of both African and non-African scholars have shaped thought within the discipline;
- Develop critical thinking and listening skills in analyzing cultural values and orientations of African peoples in relation to the values and orientations of communities in the United States;
- Improve their abilities to communicate about African music clearly and effectively in small and large group contexts.

REQUIREMENTS
Each student must
- Attend class regularly,
- Complete required reading, listening, and viewing assignments,
- Participate in class discussions,
- Take three exams,
- Research, produce, and present a term paper or media project.

READINGS AND RECORDING
There is no required text purchase for this class. Assigned readings will come from sources made available online through the CANVAS E-LEARNING SITE for the class and through the UF Library. Students are encouraged to consult Oxford Music Online (includes Grove Music) and the Garland Encyclopedia of World Music for additional general information on specific African regions, countries, musical styles, and musicians as we cover them during the semester. These and other sources are available online and in hard copy through the Architecture & Fine Arts Library. A useful link for key resources in conducting music research and is http://guides.uflib.ufl.edu/music.

LISTENING/VIEWING MATERIALS
Listening to music outside of class periods is required for this class. For the topics we cover, you will be assigned selected listening examples that are available on the Canvas E-learning site for this class. Occasional viewing/listening examples may be available through the UF Library.

Exams
There will be three exams during the semester. Exams will include a combination of objective, short answer, listening identification, and essay portions. You must bring two pencils (or pens) to class for each of the exams. Make-ups for exams will be given for excused absences only (see class attendance below).

Preliminary Exam Schedule (subject to change)

CLASS ATTENDANCE POLICY

Regular class attendance is required of all students; attendance will be taken beginning the second week of class. Attendance is critical because much of the course material comes directly from class lectures, discussions, demonstrations, etc. Students will be responsible for all information presented and assigned in class. Please arrive at class in time to take your seat by 11:45 and remain in class through the entire period. Each student is allowed three unexcused absences during the semester; each additional unexcused absence (beyond three) may result in lowering your final grade assessment by 1%. If you miss class for any reason (excused or not) you are responsible for getting notes from a fellow student and a copy of relevant handouts from the instructor. Make-ups for exams are given for excused absences only. An excused absence is defined as 1) a medical issue accompanied by a signed statement from your doctor, 2) a serious family emergency with a signed statement from parent or guardian, 3) an official University of Florida activity accompanied by a signed statement from an appropriate faculty representative with a two-week prior notification, 4) a religious holiday observance with a two-week prior notification to instructor or Course TA, 5) military service or court-imposed legal obligations accompanied by written proof two weeks prior to the date of the absence.

Requirements for class attendance and make-up exams, assignments, and other work are consistent with university policies that can be found at: https://catalog.ufl.edu/ugrad/current/regulations/info/attendance.aspx.
TERM PAPER/MEDIA PROJECT
Each student must research and write a term paper or produce a media project, a component of which will be an oral presentation of the paper/project to the class. Students will be required to submit a paper or project proposal outlining the topic (due February 12). The final paper should be 10-15 pages in length and follow proper formatting and citation as prescribed by the instructor. Media project such as a documentary video, radio podcast or PowerPoint presentation etc. must include an outline/storyboard, a script a (Final written paper/media project due April 20, 2016).

SCHOLASTIC DISHONESTY
Students enrolled in this class are expected to be honest. Cheating on exams and plagiarizing (presenting someone else’s ideas, words, or products as one’s own without providing proper recognition of the original source) are serious matters. As a result of completing the registration form at the University of Florida, every student has signed the following statement: “I understand that the University of Florida expects its students to be honest in all their academic work. I agree to adhere to this commitment to academic honesty and understand that my failure to comply with this commitment may result in disciplinary action up to and including expulsion from the University.” The instructor of this course fully endorses this statement and will not tolerate academic dishonesty. Anyone caught cheating or plagiarizing is subject to an automatic E and further disciplinary action.

HINTS FOR STUDENTS
Attend classes regularly, ask questions, and take notes. Refer to the syllabus for general information and to the course calendar for assignments. Establish contact with other students in the class and study together. Create a class notebook (loose-leaf is best) to keep the syllabus, course schedule, and all handouts together with your notes from the lectures, reading, listening, and viewing assignments. This will help you organize information and study for tests more efficiently. Re-read your notes to make sure you understand them and underline important names and terms (If you take notes on one side of the page only you can later use the backside to define the terms and names you underline). When reading, listening, and viewing the assignments, take notes of the major points to help you remember the information covered.

INSTRUCTOR’S OFFICE HOURS
Open office hours for discussing assignments, clarifications on readings or lectures, looking at tests, or discussing other issues related to the class are on Wednesdays 5th period or by appointment.

CLASSROOM POLICIES
You are expected to be in your seat for the beginning of class. In the rare case that you are late, please enter quietly and take a seat. The period ends when the instructor dismisses the class. Please do not exit before you are dismissed unless you have already advised the instructor that you must leave early (please do this before the period begins). During the class period you are encouraged to ask questions and participate in discussions. Please do not read outside materials (newspapers, textbooks or materials for other courses, etc.) or use electronic devices for non-class related matters during class time. No texting, checking for messages, browsing, game playing, etc. is allowed during class. Use your electronic devices for taking notes and other class related tasks. Eating, drinking, and sleeping are also not allowed in this class. Finally, the lectures, handouts, and other materials of the course are the intellectual property of the instructor. Do not electronically record lectures or take photos without the permission of the instructor.

ACCOMMODATIONS FOR STUDENTS WITH DISABILITIES

Students requesting classroom accommodations must first contact the Dean of Students Office. The Dean of Students will provide documentation to the student who must then provide this documentation to the Instructor when requesting accommodation.
