UF's School of Theatre + Dance Presents David Ives' Adaption of The Liar July 9-12 in Constans Theatre

Gainesville, Fla., June 23, 2015 — The University of Florida (UF) School of Theatre + Dance's second summer production brings the 17th century world of comedy, romance and miscommunication to the Constans Theatre stage in Pierre Corneille's The Liar. Adapted by David Ives and directed by Judith Williams, The Liar features UF graduate and undergraduate students. Performances will be held in the Nadine M. McGuire Theatre and Dance Pavilion on UF's campus at 7:30 p.m. July 9-11, 2015 and at 2 p.m. on Sunday, July 12, 2015.

The Liar features Dorante, a charming young man newly arrived in Paris in 1643 who has one flaw... he cannot tell the truth. As luck would have it, Dorante meets Cliton, a manservant who cannot tell a lie. The two embark on an adventure that is met with several obstacles, from mistaking one woman for another to an arranged engagement. The mound of lies being told creates a wonderfully witty comedy. Along with the two protagonists, audience members are introduced to Clarice; Clarice's close friend, Lucrece; Alcippe, a well-to-do, charismatic young man; and Geronte, Dorante's father. Ives' adaptation takes one of the Western world's greatest comedies and brings it forward with topical references and modern sensibilities.

“Corneille’s The Liar creates the patina of 17th century Paris during the reign of Louis XIV in which to set a clever expose on lying and liars,” said Williams. “This play is relevant because lying is a major theme everyone can relate to. To quote Ives, ‘For in a world where priests and princes lie, the liar blends in like a butterfly.’”

Tickets are $17 for the general public, and are $13 for students, UF faculty/staff and senior citizens. Group rates are available for parties of eight or more.
