REQUIRED TEXT: None

ADDITIONAL RESOURCES: Additional resources will be provided/suggested during the course.

COURSE DESCRIPTION: An examination of how the interpretive markings in ancient manuscripts can inform contemporary interpretation of chant.

PREREQUISITE KNOWLEDGE AND SKILLS: Students in this course should have fluency in reading music.

PURPOSE OF COURSE: The music called Gregorian chant is not only the official music of the Catholic Church, but also the music that shaped the polyphonic music of Western civilization. Thus, understanding its structure, ethos, and musical nuances is fundamental to a compelling interpretation of both chant itself and much of the music it shaped. This course provides the tools needed for that compelling interpretation.

COURSE GOALS AND/OR OBJECTIVES: By the end of this course, students will:

Be able to read modern square-note notation;

Be able to read the notation systems of the St. Gall family of manuscripts and the Laon 239 manuscript;

Be able to identify and analyze the structures of the ecclesiastical modes;

Be able to use Gregorio chant notation software;

Be able to create documents in InDesign;

Be able to analyze chants combining insights from the text, melody, mode, and ancient notation of the music;

Create a performing edition of one or more chants, using Gregorio and InDesign, and based on a full analysis of the music.
