Objectives and Outcomes:

- To refine the ability to analyze (seeing the structure of the text and preparation for the imaginative leap), to conceptualize (bringing the text to new life through a filter or a metaphor which amplifies and refocuses the text rather than reducing it), and to articulate (in written and verbal forms) your vision of the play.
- To amplify your communicative and collaborative skills.
- To develop a unique leadership style which will enable you to excite and inspire as well as to shape and coalesce the individual and the collaborative contribution of each member of the production team.
- To create and foster a strong sense of support and an ensemble within this class. Success in this area will be an indicator of your future collaborative ability as a director.
- To strive towards the life-long goal of becoming better citizens of the world. We are a product of all that has gone before and all that is happening now.
- To define verbally and in written form a critical aesthetic response to your own and others’ directing. Good feedback focuses on the work, on the individual, and the specific, rather than the general. Constructive feedback is honest, direct, and explains the problem as the critic perceives it and offers possible solutions that are related to the director’s vision of the play. The best feedback never attempts to redirect the director’s scene or production.

Required Text:
Dean, Alexander and Lawrence Carra. Fundamentals of Play Directing.

Recommended Text:
Thomas, James. Script Analysis for Actors, Directors, and Designers.
ALSO: Various in-class handouts in relation to specific areas of discussion

Optional Texts:
Shapiro, Mel. The Director’s Companion.
Bogart, Anne. And Then, You Act.

Class Attendance:
* Attendance and participation in all classes is mandatory. Students arriving late for class MAY NOT be admitted depending on the discretion of the instructor in regard to the specific activity underway at the time. University Graduate Catalog states: “The University recognizes the right of the individual professor to make attendance mandatory. After due warning, professors may prohibit further attendance and then assign a failing grade for excessive absences.”
Required Viewings:
Attendance at live theatre productions is required for all students enrolled in this course: ... And Jesus Moonwalks the Mississippi, Eurydice, and Macbeth Each student will select two (2) productions during the semester and facilitate a 30-40 minute in-class discussion on the directorial aspects of the production. The discussion should focus on what the director attempted to do and whether or not he/she was successful. Everyone must support your opinions with specifics. Comments concerning acting must relate to the director/actor relationship.
