Course Description

Due to a lack of courses in the student's area of focus being offered this semester (or other extenuating circumstances), the student will work directly with the professor to develop a reading list, complete written assignments during the semester, and produce a research paper. In this case the student will explore Moche art of ancient Peru, following the format of a seminar offered by the professor in 2014.

Course Pre-Requisites / Co-Requisites

Permission of instructor.

Expected Learning Outcomes

The student should:

- Practice working one-on-one and in a collaborative nature with a faculty member.
- Gain an understanding of the body of scholarship on the Moche.
- Critically consider how various art historical methods are applied to Moche art, and distinguish art historical approaches from those of other disciplines.
- In weekly reading summaries, show the ability to synthesize and summarize authors' arguments.
- Develop on-point discussion topics for the weekly meetings.
- Identify a feasible research topic in consultation with the professor.
- Hone research and writing skills to produce a substantial paper with the following: a clear thesis, an argument based in large part on visual analyses, and a theoretical position grounded in engagement with existing scholarship.
- Use appropriate search, bibliography, and citation tools in research. Provide properly formatted citations in paper.

Required Textbooks

- Margaret Jackson. 2008. Moche Art and Visual Culture in Ancient Peru. Albuquerque, NM: University of New Mexico Press.
- Donna McClelland, Donald McClelland, and Christopher B. Donnan. 2007. Moche Finesline Painting from San José de Moro. Los Angeles: Cotsen Institute of Archaeology.
- Mary Weismantel. 2021. Playing with Things: Engaging the Moche Sex Pots. Austin: University of Texas Press.

Attendance Policy

Student should meet with professor on a weekly basis to discuss readings and research progress.

Requirements for attendance and classwork in this course are consistent with university policies. Click here to read the university attendance policies.

Requirements

For each weekly meeting the student should come having read all of the required readings for that day. They should also come with a short written synopsis of each reading. The synopsis should identify the author's main argument and explain how the selection is a contribution to the literature, rather than summarizing the reading's content in detail. The student should also come with at least one in-depth discussion question from each reading. Being mindful that the weekly meeting is only one hour, the student should stay on point and stick to the class topic.

The student should complete a 15–17 page research paper on a topic developed in consultation with the professor. In preparation for this, the student should submit a brief paper abstract and working bibliography during Week 12. Then the first draft of the paper is due in Week 14, with a final draft due Week 16.

Grade Breakdown

Attendance at weekly meetings and participation overall: 30%

Synopses and discussion questions for meetings: 10%
