THE 3231: Spring 2022

African-American Theatre History and Practice

Class Meeting Time - MWF Per. 7 (1:55 - 2:45) / CON 0219

Dr. Mikell Pinkney / Office: 222 McGuire Pavilion / 273-0512 / mpinkney@arts.ufl.edu

Office Hours: TW & R. 12:50-1:40 PM / Also by appointment

Course Content: An investigation and examination of the historical origins and development of theatre by, for and about Black/ African Americans from the late 18th Century through the end of the 20th Century. The course examines theatre from an historical, philosophical, ethnic and racial perspective and provides a theoretical understanding of cultural studies and sociological influences on and within a larger American society as created and represented for, about, by and through the perspectives of Black-Americans, highlighting a systematic move from cultural margin to mainstream theatrical practices and acknowledgements.

Objectives and Outcomes: Students will learn the historical contexts of playwrights, performers, theorists & theoretical concepts, productions and organizations that help to identify African-American Theatre as an indigenous American institution. Terminology and concepts of cultural studies are learned as a means for access and critical thinking about the subject. Discussions are developed through readings, lectures, videos, and analysis of dramatic literature of the field. Two tests, a mid-term exam, a group presentation and a final paper are required to access competence, communication and critical thinking skills.

Student Learning Objectives:

1. Students identify and analyze key elements, biases and influences that shape thought within the discipline (Critical Thinking)
2. Students approach issues and problems within the discipline from multiple perspectives (Critical Thinking)
3. Students will communicate knowledge, thoughts and reasoning clearly and effectively in forms appropriate to the discipline, individually and/or in groups (Communication)
4. Students demonstrate higher awareness of minority and marginalized artistic cultural forms and perspectives of expression (Communication)
5. Students demonstrate awareness of foundations of American theatrical systems (Communication)

For more information about General Education Student Learning Outcomes go to:

Course Goals:

- Students will be able to analyze the historical development of dramatic theory, philosophy and practice of marginalized/ minority cultures (SLO 1, 2 & 3)
- Students will become familiar with dramatic literature not part of the overall theatrical mainstream (SLO 1 & 2)
- Students will develop ability to discuss philosophies of “otherness” and “hermeneutical perspectives” among other cultural studies terminology (SLO 3, 4 & 5)
- Students will write about and discuss plays read over the course of the semester, focusing on being able to convey the essence of the literature with the skills of sociological awareness (SLO 1, 2, 3, 4 & 5)
- Students will communicate wider awareness of alternative voices and social agency (SLO 4 & 5)

Required Texts:

Pinkney, Mikell. The Theoretical Development of African-American Theatre and Drama. (*Unpublished material emailed to registered students in full attendance at regular intervals.)
Hatch, James V. and Ted Shine, eds. Black Theatre USA: Vol. 1 - The Early Period 1847-1938. (New York: The Free Press, 1996)
Hatch, James V. and Ted Shine, eds. Black Theatre USA: Vol. 2 - The Recent Period 1935-Today. (New York: The Free Press, 1996)
Childress, Joseph and Gary Hentzi. Columbia Dictionary of Modern Literary and Cultural Criticism. (New York: Columbia UP 1995) Paperback cover.
Wilson, August. Radio Golf. Play script (Theatre Communications Group 2007).

ALSO: Various in-class handouts in relation to specific areas of discussion

Optional Texts: Hill, Errol G. and James V. Hatch. A History of African American Theatre. (New York: Cambridge UP, 2003, 2005)

Hill, Errol, ed. The Theatre of Black Americans: A Collection of Critical Essays. (New York: Applause Theatre Books, 1980, 1987, 1990)

Class Attendance: Attendance in each scheduled class is essential for success. University policy allows undergraduates students three (3) absences without penalty (these include illness and personal needs). After three absences from this course, 10 points will be deducted from your attendance point totals, which may also result in negative points deducted for the final grading process! Please make effort to be on time for each scheduled class, as the instructor is not required to explain missed information presented during classes. The course focuses on preparation for the production of live theatre. Therefore, being present in class is an important aspect of both the teaching and learning process in this course.

Make-up Work:

Students having to miss classes for any reasons, must inform the professor of a justifiable reason and appropriate documentation for the absence within one week. Any assignment needing make-up must be scheduled ASAP but no later than two weeks from the date of the missed assignment

Required Viewings: Attendance at live theatre productions is required for all students enrolled in this course. This term's coupon productions will include: As You Like It, Antigone, and Marisol. Your attendance at these productions will be important. Students desiring extra credit may do analysis for all three productions. Each production analysis will be worth 10 points to be factored into your final grade. These "response papers" must be no longer than 2-3 pages in length and must focus on cultural studies issues.

Final Papers: Papers are to be typed, double spaced and formatted according to MLA standards. (1" margins surrounding the page; name, date, instructor and course in upper left hand corner of first page; title centered on first page; each page numbered in upper right hand corner of each page ½" from top of page. Neatness, grammar and spelling do count! No added title pages are necessary for papers.) Final Papers should reflect on any aspect of black theatre history, theory, biography of important artists or literature (plays) with a cultural studies perspective either studied or alluded to in this course during the semester. The core/ essence of each paper should be between 7-9 pages in length. This does NOT include endnotes and bibliography pages, which may take your paper to a maximum of 10-11 pages.

Due no later than Sunday, April 24th at 11:59 PM! Submission procedure TBD!

Group Presentations of Plays Should Include:

- A Power Point presentation and handout materials of important issues for the entire class
- Very brief overview or summary of plot (everyone in class should read the play)
- Possible meaning(s) and purposes of play title
- Brief background about the playwright
- Other important works by the same playwright
- Theme and highlights of important issues discussed in play
- Location and setting of the action (including any meaning or metaphors associated)
- Major and minor characters (including their purpose and objectives in the play)
- The time period of the play and related issues from that historical moment
- Major quotes or lines from the play that present important messages for today
- Outside critiques of the play and the issues when it was produced (or later reviewed)
- Personal important and memorable perspectives of group members about the play
- Handout should include 3-5 relevant study questions that may be included on an exam
- Make sure to list each group members contribution to the presentation on your handout

Each presentation should take no longer than 30-35 minutes of class time. All group members will receive the same numerical point value for the presentations (100 points total). Points will be deducted for missing elements above. Outstanding presentations may be awarded bonus points!

Grading: Grading will be based on a point system with 400 total possible points:

1. Attendance and Participation	100
(100% for perfect attendance; 10 points dropped for each absence beyond 3.)
2. 2 Tests @ 50 points each	100
3. Mid-Term Exam	100
4. Group Presentation	100
5. Final Paper	100
(Final Papers due no later than Sunday, April 24th! No exceptions please!)

Extra Credit Bonus:

Production Response Papers (3@ 10 points each for a total of 30. Must be submitted no more than 1 week following close of productions!)

FINAL GRADE SCORINGS:

A = 470-500 / A- = 450-469 /
 B+ = 421-449 / B = 401-420 / B- = 381-400 /
