Office Hours: Wednesday, period 8 or by appointment

FOCUS
This seminar explores some of the most important musical developments in nineteenth-century Europe, particularly intersections of music, philosophy, ideology, and politics. It is divided into three major units: The first unit examines aesthetic and ideological issues related to three major symphonic works by Beethoven, Berlioz, and Brahms. The second unit explores construction of song cycles from both formal and narrative perspectives; it also addresses ideological issues related to chamber music. Finally, the third unit considers dramatic and ideological aspects in the operas of Verdi and Wagner. A list of selected works and readings will provide the framework for critical approaches to historiography and musical analysis.

Students will become familiar with the most recent scholarly research on nineteenth-century music and develop critical tools for assessing discourses about music. Students will also report their findings to the seminar and produce a scholarly paper addressing issues raised during the semester.

TEXTBOOK
There is no textbook for this seminar. Reading materials will consist of chapters of books and articles, most of which are on reserve in the AFA Library. Articles are also available through Ares, the e-reserve system, and can be downloaded. Please bring a printed copy to class for reference during discussions. (To access, click on “Course Reserves” in the Quick links portion on the library’s webpage: http://guides.uflib.ufl.edu/music)

Most of the scores are in public domain and are available to download for free from the International Music Score Library Project (http://imslp.org/wiki/). Dover scores are inexpensive and may be purchased at http://store.doverpublications.com/ or Amazon.com.

All listening materials are available in the AFA Library. They are also available electronically through the Naxus Music Library, available through the Music Library webpage (http://guides.uflib.ufl.edu/music).

ASSESSMENT
Each seminar participant will Lead Discussion on two seminars during the semester. All participants are required to complete all assigned reading and participate in discussion. We will establish a rotation of discussion leaders at the beginning of the semester. Leaders will be responsible for submitting two or three questions related to the readings to the seminar one week in advance of the pertinent class and providing a handout summarizing the most important points for discussion. I will also prepare a short presentation for each class and raise questions on the assigned readings for in-class discussion.

Each participant will also write three short Critical Responses (about 350 words each) to three articles during the semester. This assignment may be completed in preparation to the seminar, while taking notes on the assigned articles, or in connection with your leading the in-class discussion. I will leave the deadline open, but responses will need to be uploaded into Canvas in order to have a grade.

The Writing Assignment and in-class Presentation will give students an opportunity to explore topics related to the materials discussed within the semester. Students will provide handouts for in-class presentations and present the results of their research to the seminar on assigned dates. An extended research paper will follow the highest standards of the discipline and will address questions raised in seminar. I will provide further instructions as the semester progresses.
Make-ups for presentations and leading discussions are given only for excused absences. An excused absence is defined as 1) a medical issue accompanied by a signed statement from your doctor, 2) a serious family emergency with a signed statement from parent or guardian, 3) an official University of Florida activity accompanied by a signed statement from an appropriate faculty representative with a two-week prior notification to instructor, 4) a religious holiday observance with a two-week prior notification to instructor, 5) military service or court-imposed legal obligations accompanied by written proof two weeks prior to absence. Failure to appear for any of the assignments without prior arrangement will result in an E for that assignment.
