COURSE DESCRIPTION: Focusing on the intersection of historical, social, and cultural awareness and theatrical design, students will investigate critical social movements in design while examining the impact design choice has on the individual and society. College of the Arts Mission:

The University of Florida College of the Arts intends to be a transformative community, responding to and generating paradigmatic shifts in the arts and beyond. We do so by:

- Embracing the complexity of our evolving human experience and seeking to empower our students and faculty to shape that experience fearlessly through critical study, creative practice, and provocation.
- Collaborating effectively with the forces of change.
- Preparing students to access and unsettle centers of power in a radically changing world.
- Facilitating an arts education that will position emerging artists and researchers as catalysts for equity on local and global levels.

COURSE STUDENT LEARNING OUTCOMES:

After completing this course students will:

- be able to have critical and nuanced conversations about history and current social issues.
- understand the intersectionality of design and social environment.
- have a broad basis for design history in western and non-western culture.

- be able to critically research both in text and visual evidence.
- be able to prepare lecture notes and visual presentations for undergraduate teaching opportunities.
- more fully understand their personal voice.

COURSE MATERIALS:

Asynchronous modules will consist of academic readings, videos and exercises. Each module will open one week before it is due. Reviewing asynchronous modules is essential to your understanding of in class lectures and participation in in class discussions.

ASSIGNMENTS AND COURSE EXPECTATIONS

Participation and Attendance (20%)

Participation and attendance are required. Please come prepared to each class meeting having completed all online assignments so that you can engage the content of each lecture and/or discussion.

Attendance Policy: The success of this course is based on discussion and class participation. Attendance is vital. Only one (1) unexcused absence from class will be permitted without penalty. Each additional unexcused absence will lower your final grade by 5%. Two (2) late arrivals and/or early departures to/from class will count as one (1) absence. Three unexcused absences will result in a failing grade in this class. Excused absences are consistent with university policies in the undergraduate catalog (<https://catalog.ufl.edu/UGRD/academicregulations/attendance-policies/>) and require appropriate documentation.

Rubric for Assessing Student Participation

	Exemplary (14-15)	Proficient (12-14)	Developing (10-12)	Unacceptable (<10)
Frequency of participation in class	Student initiates contributions more than once in each recitation.	Student initiates contribution once in each recitation. Quality of comments	Comments always insightful & constructive; uses appropriate terminology. Comments balanced between general impressions, opinions & specific, thoughtful criticisms or contributions.	Comments mostly insightful & constructive; mostly uses appropriate terminology. Does not listen to others; regularly talks while others speak or does not pay attention while others speak; detracts from discussion; sleeps, etc.

Module Exercises (15%)

Module Exercises will be completed at the end of each week's asynchronous module. Exercises apply concepts to visual research, concept, and design presentation components. Grading will consider growth of understanding of history and competency throughout the semester. _____

Live Performance Response (5%)

Through the course of the semester, you will be required to attend 2 live performances produced by The School of Theatre and Dance. A response discussion will be curated by instructor on Canvas. Responses should thoughtfully consider the production ecosystem onstage during each performance.

This Is Us Paper (20%)

This Is Us Visual (20%)

This Is Us is a visual and written project that grounds student designers in their ancestral history and its intersection with historical costume, artifact and/or space. To explore one's own history and ground oneself in the clothing of that history returns power to the diverse individuality of each student and raises awareness of the complex history of social assimilation.

Please see Course Calendar for multiple check-in dates.

Visual: Let your creativity shine. As a community we will create a website to feature your work. Visual format can include photos, videos, collages, renderings - your imagination is the limit! All images should represent accurate historical details and follow proper research methods.

Writing (4 pages/2000 words): This should be considered a research report. You should use information from your annotated bibliography to tell the history and link the ancestry to your present. You will be evaluated with respect to grammar, punctuation, clarity, coherence, and organization.

Research Project (20%)

The goal of this project is to collectively assemble the information (text and photographic) you would need to teach a module in a future course. Each student will be assigned one period to research the following across multiple continents, countries, and cultures:

- social context
- notable artists and artistic movements
- political movements
- architectural details
- historic spaces
- decor
- gender specific dress
- wigs, hair, and makeup
- accessories and shoes

All research should follow standards addressed in Research Methods module. Material should be compiled and presented with the idea that you would be giving an in-class lecture to an undergraduate student. Submissions will be made via canvas and all students will have access to each other's finalized research presentation. It is unnecessary to work as a group but this is welcome if students desire this type of interaction. If so, each student is solely responsible for completing assigned research
