Course Description: This course will examine the current state of research in the field of Colonial Latin American Art History. The field is comprised of scholarship on the art and culture of the Spanish viceroyalties, spanning the period between the European invasion of the hemisphere in 1492 and the wars of independence in the early 19th century. The goal of the course is to read recent scholarship (often paired with canonical books, chapters, articles) on many of the most important topics in the field. This approach will expose students to a variety of the most important scholars and help them learn about the key methodological approaches that they have adopted in their research. It will also help them identify and understand the main issues and ideas that anchor the field, many of which also provide points of connection to other, related fields within the discipline of art history.

Required Reading: There are no required textbooks for the course. Instead, we will use numerous book chapters and articles available on our Canvas page.

You will need to write on, make notes in and underlines these texts so that we can return to them in discussion. So, whether you print the readings or use your screens is up to you, but you will need to be able to bring them to class so please plan accordingly.

Grading:

20% Attendance & Participation

10% Discussion Leadership

25% Weekly Reading Prep

10% Research Presentation

35% Final Research Paper

Attendance and Participation: Attendance is extremely important in a seminar style class, as many of our learning outcomes can only be achieved by attending class and participating fully in discussion. As a result, attendance and participation will make up a large portion of your final grade for the class (20%). You will be allowed one un-penalized absence, which assumes that you will need a day because you are sick, etc. For each subsequent absence you will lose 2 points from the “Attendance and Participation” portion of your final grade. (Obviously, absences due to poor health will be excused, although you should note that excessive absences may result in a failing grade).

With regards to participation, it is important that you come to class having read the material, and then engage in class discussion in a meaningful, collegial, and constructive way. Failure to come prepared, or to engage with the class conversation in ways that reflects your preparedness, will result in a loss of credit for that day’s participation. I realize that participating in class discussion will come easier for some than others; we all must be aware that some students will need to step up and speak, and others must step back and make space for the opinions of others.

Each day, before class concludes I will ask all students to complete and turn in a small slip of paper that offers a self-assessment of their level of preparedness and participation. This exercise will ensure that students have the chance to reflect on a weekly basis on the way that they are showing up in class and to make changes if necessary. It will also provide a touchstone for my own assessment (a weekly participation grade) that will reflect the degree to which students contribute to the classroom dialog in a positive fashion.

Discussion Leadership: For each week, a single person will take charge of leading the discussion of that material, which will help us interrogate and better understand the assigned reading(s) and their connection to bigger issues. You will sign up in week 2 for the week you will lead.

Weekly Reading Preparation: Each week you will be required to complete a writing assignment about the assigned reading. This will often, but not always, take the shape of a one-page summary of the reading that encapsulates its main argument. These assignments must be turned in by 9am on the day of class. I will circulate some of these writings (without names attached) in class to use them as points of departure for our discussion about the readings. The in-class discussion of the summaries will not only help us consider various “readings” of the reading, but it will also allow us the chance to critique them as written documents, helping us hone our craft as writers.

Final Research Presentation/ Paper Assignment: Instead of exams, you will write an in-depth research paper on a topic related to the class. The goal of this research paper is to select an issue of interest and explore it in much greater depth than is possible in class. You should collect scholarly sources, read them, synthesize their arguments, examine the artworks/objects for yourself, and compose a thoughtful essay that makes an argument about the artworks or concepts that made up the focus of your examination. Your papers should be 15-20 pages in length (2x spaced, times new roman, normal margins), not including a title page, images, and the bibliography.

Important dates and mileposts for the paper are as follows:

Week 5: Initial Research Topic Due (in class on paper) (5%)

Week 9: Bib. and Research Question Assignment Due (on Canvas) (5%)

Week 15: In-Class Research Presentations (10%)

Week 16: Final Draft of Research Paper Due (25%)

Grading Scale

Grades are tabulated on a 100-point scale and a letter grade is assigned as follows:

-----	93.5–100 A	89.5–93.4 A-
86.5–89.4 B+	83.5–86.4 B	79.5–83.4 B-
76.5–79.4 C+	73.5–76.4 C	69.5–73.4 C-
66.5–69.4 D+	63.5–66.4 D	59.5–63.4 D-
59.4 and below	F

If you have questions about how grade points are assigned by the University, go to:

<https://catalog.ufl.edu/ugrad/current/regulations/info/grades.aspx>

Reminders and Requirements

UF Requirements and Policy: Requirements for class attendance and make-up exams, assignments, and other work in this course are consistent with university policies that can be found at: <https://catalog.ufl.edu/UGRD/academic-regulations/attendance-policies/>

Statement Regarding the Honor Pledge: UF students are bound by The Honor Pledge which states, “We, the members of the University of Florida community, pledge to hold ourselves and our peers to the highest standards of honor and integrity by abiding by the Honor Code. On all work submitted for credit by students at the University of Florida, the following pledge is either required or implied: “On my honor, I have neither given nor received unauthorized aid in doing this assignment.” The Conduct Code specifies a number of behaviors that are in violation of this code and the possible sanctions. Click here to read the Conduct Code. If you have any questions or concerns, please consult with the instructor or TAs in this class.

Accommodations: I, along with the rest of the University community, am working to create inclusive learning environments. Students with disabilities who experience learning barriers and would like to request academic accommodations should connect with the disability Resource Center. Click here to get started with the Disability Resource Center. It is important for students to share their accommodation letter with instructors and discuss their access needs, as early as possible in the semester. So, please notify me if there are aspects of the instruction or design of this course that result in disability-related barriers to your participation as soon as possible and we can work to find a solution.

Respect and Community : The intent is that we explore the content of this course in a way that is respectful of diversity: gender identity, sexuality, ability, age, socioeconomic status, ethnicity, race, nationality, religion, and culture. The intent is also to present content that explores diverse points of view, which might be challenging. Maintaining a respectful environment will be our responsibility. The intent is that students from all diverse backgrounds and perspectives be well-served by this course and that the diversity that the students bring to this class be viewed as a resource, strength and benefit. Your suggestions are encouraged and appreciated.

Changes to the Syllabus: While this document provides guidelines for the class, I do reserve the right to change the syllabus at any time during the semester if the need arises. Each class is different, and sometimes it takes some tweaking to get the right readings, topics, and assignments. Being flexible with the syllabus allows us to get it right.

In-Class Recording: Students are allowed to record video or audio of class lectures. However, the purposes for which these recordings may be used are strictly controlled. The only allowable purposes are (1) for personal educational use, (2) in connection with a complaint to the university, or (3) as evidence in, or in preparation for, a criminal or civil proceeding. All other purposes are prohibited. Specifically, students may not publish recorded lectures without the written consent of the instructor.

A “class lecture” is an educational presentation intended to inform or teach enrolled students about a particular subject, including any instructor-led discussions that form part of the presentation, and delivered by any instructor hired or appointed by the University, or by a guest instructor, as part of a University of Florida course. A class lecture does not include lab sessions, student presentations, clinical presentations such as patient history, academic exercises involving solely student participation, assessments (quizzes, tests, exams), field trips, private conversations between students in the class or between a student and the faculty or guest lecturer during a class session.

Publication without permission of the instructor is prohibited. To “publish” means to share, transmit, circulate, distribute, or provide access to a recording, regardless of format or medium, to another person (or persons), including but not limited to another student within the same class section. Additionally, a recording, or transcript of a recording, is considered published if it is posted on or uploaded to, in whole or in part, any media platform, including but not limited to social media, book, magazine, newspaper, leaflet, or third party note/tutoring services. A student who publishes a recording without written consent may be subject to a civil cause of action instituted by a person injured by the publication and/or discipline under UF Regulation 4.040 Student Honor Code and Student Conduct Code.

Notes on Technology and Communication

- Communication and Respect: We all must strive to be good communicators to make this class successful. This means listening respectfully to others in class (faculty and students) and engaging in respectful conversation. It also, perhaps just as importantly, means maintaining professional standards while communicating via email and outside of class. With that in mind, please use formal, respectful, and professional standards when corresponding via email. This means beginning emails with a formal greeting, employing proper grammar, and avoiding unprofessional colloquialisms.
- Canvas: Please make sure that you are familiar with our course site on Canvas so that you will have access to announcements, assignments and readings, and pptx presentations you will need for your work.
- Course Evaluations: Students are expected to provide professional and respectful feedback on the quality of instruction in this course by completing course evaluations online via GatorEvals. Guidance on how to give feedback in a professional and respectful manner is available at <https://gatorevals.aa.ufl.edu/students/>. Students will be notified when the evaluation period opens, and can complete evaluations through the email they receive from GatorEvals, in their Canvas course menu under GatorEvals, or via <https://ufl.bluera.com/ufl/>. Summaries of course evaluation results are available to students at <https://gatorevals.aa.ufl.edu/public-results/>.
